COUNCIL (Aboriginal Corporation)

PERMIT PACK

Ngaanyatjarra Entry Permits

The Permit System

Entry to Ngaanyatjarra Lands can only be made by non-Aboriginal people who have been issued with an entry permit. It is also necessary to have a transit permit when travelling by road within the Northern Territory (obtainable from the Central Land council). The permit system applies to tourists transiting the Lands on the major route from Uluru or Kalgoorlie, or Wiluna, via Giles and Warburton, as well as people wishing to carry out activities ranging from gold prospecting to collecting insects, and mining companies wishing to explore Ngaanyatjarra Lands.

People who have authority to enter the Lands without Permits include members of the Police Force, Public Health Officials, officers of Government Authorities, if and so long as they enter and remain for the purpose of the lawful exercise and performance of the functions and duties pertaining to their Office. The permit requirement does not apply to approved employees of Ngaanyatjarra Council. Any person who breaks the By-Laws is guilty of an offence and liable for a fine.

Issuing of Permits

The Ngaanyatjarra Council usually issues transit permits with little delay from the Alice Springs office. Applications for Entry Permits to Ngaanyatjarra Lands are made on a "Reserve Entry Permit Application" form. Permit application forms are available from the Community Office or Ngaanyatjarra Council office in Alice Springs. DIA also offer an option of applying for a permit on-line through their website, however any permit request that is for more than the normal 3 day transit permit will be sent to Ngaanyatjarra Council for full approval.

Requests from the public for a permit to visit communities, art centres or similar must be sent out to the communities involved for individual approval from the community members. Ngaanyatjarra Council does have the authority to issue these permits, however as a matter of courtesy prefers that the community members sign off on the approval.

Occasionally there are requests for permits to enter the Lands that are outside of the normal criteria, e.g. someone wanting to ride a bicycle across the Lands, or a large group wanted to caravan across the lands. These requests must be made well in advance as they can only be approved at the monthly Ngaanyatjarra Council meetings.
